RECORDS—SEAL

Catalogue of old documents, records, papers, etc., of Kentucky Governors, from 1792 to 1926. Compiled by Emma Guy Cromwell, Secretary of State of Kentucky.

The Seal of the Commonwealth of Kentucky was authorized by an act of the Kentucky Legislature, approved December 20, 1792. The act is as follows:

"Be it enacted by the General Assembly, that the Governor be empowered, and he is hereby required, to provide at the public charge, a Seal of this Commonwealth, and to procure the same to be engraved with the following device, viz.: two friends embracing, with the name of the State over their heads, and round about them, the following motto: 'United We Stand, Divided We Fall.'" In the Auditor's report No. 1, page 25, we find the following:

"July 10, 1793, warrant issued David Humphries, for making a Seal and Press for the use of the Commonwealth, twelve pounds sterling."

During the first year of Kentucky's history the seal and motto now in use were legally established.

CLASSIFICATION OF RECORDS

Classification, indexing and cataloging of records, documents and papers of all the Governors of Kentucky under the custody of Secretary of State, from 1792—Governor Isaac Shelby—to 1926 of Governor W. J. Fields' term of office, by sections, boxes and jackets filed chronologically.

This catalog has been prepared by Secretary of State, Emma Guy Cromwell, for the preservation of valuable records and documents for the convenience of the public, also giving the pictures of Kentucky's Capitol buildings. These pictures were copied from the originals, except the one in which the Legislature first convened in Lexington, 1792—a two-story log house which was reproduced from a description taken from "The History of Lexington" by the historian, G. W. Ranks. The reproduction was made by Miss Tillie Mae Peffer, of Frankfort, Kentucky. Under each picture are the names of the Governors serving at that time in said buildings.

With permission of the present Sinking Fund composed of Honorable W. J. Fields, Governor of Kentucky, Mrs. Hon. Emma Guy Cromwell, Secretary of State, Honorable Frank E. Daugherty, Attorney General, Honorable W. H. Shanks, Auditor, and Honorable E. B. Dishman, State Treasurer, I was able to preserve the State's valuable records and papers that come under the custody of the Secretary of State, and turn them over to the public classified, indexed and cataloged.

The condition you now find the records will mean much to educators, lawyers and to the public in general.

It is to be hoped that this catalog will be kept up in the future and all records coming under the custody of the Secretary of State will at the proper time be classified, cataloged and turned over to the Historical Society for preservation.

Under the direction of Governor W. J. Fields, in April, 1926, all official documents, papers, letters, Executive Journals, Senate and House Journals, from 1792 to 1916 were turned over to the State Historical Society in the old capitol building, and are now ready for the use of the public in the Historical Building.

EMMA GUY CROMWELL,

Secretary of State.

CAPITOL BUILDINGS

The present State House, where the General Assembly now convenes in biennial session, is the eighth which Kentucky has had since its admission to the Union in 1792.

On April 3rd, 1792, the ninth convention met in Danville and drafted a Constitution which was adopted. In May General Isaac Shelby was elected first Governor of Kentucky, and on June 1st, Kentucky was admitted into the Union.

On June the fourth, 1792, three days after the State was orgaized, the legislature met in a two-story log house and it is a tradition that Senate met upstairs and the House downstairs, hence originated the upper house and the lower house. Later it has been found from an extract from "Reminiscences" of General James Taylor, of Newport, Kentucky, given by Mrs. Jouett Taylor Cannon, of Frankfort, Kentucky, viz.:

"In a few days I visited Lexington, then principally a log village; there were a few frames and some large log buildings, in one of which at the corner of Poplar Row at the cross street with Main, Young & Brent kept a pretty good tavern. There was but one brick house in six at that time; one called Mt. Hope, built by old Mr. January; but in that year several brick buildings were erected; among others a market house was begun on the south side of Main street and in the square below the courthouse square and was turned into a state house and the first Legislature was held in it, and begun, on the 10th of June, 1792. I was at the organization of the government and witnessed all the ceremonies."

This session lasted twelve days and each member received only one dollar per day.

On June the sixth Governor Isaac Shelby came before the legislature and delivered his message orally. The legislature continued in session until June 15th, then adjourned to meet Nov. 5th of the same year. The second session convened November 5, 1792, in Lexington and was in session until December 22, 1792, when it adjourned to hold the third session in Frankfort, Kentucky, the new seat of government.

As provided in the Constitution just adopted, the first session appointed five commissioners, composed of Robert Todd, John Edwards, John Allen, Henry Lee and Thos. Kennedy, to fix a place for the permanent seat of government. The commissioners finally decided upon Frankfort as the most popular place for the seat of government and reported same to the legislature of November 5, 1792.

This assembly adjourned to hold its next session in a large frame house on Wapping street; this house was first owned by Andrew Holmes and afterwards by Major James Love. The building was also noted as the headquarters of Aaron Burr when in Frankfort in 1806, in a rear room of this house, it is said, were planned some of the details of Burr's conspiracy. In this house also was preached the first sermon ever heard in Frankfort.

The third State House—the first permanent one erected for the purpose—was occupied by the General Assembly in November, 1794. It was destroyed by fire November 25, 1813.

On November 2nd a bill passed the legislature requiring the Auditor, Treasurer and Secretary of State to live at the seat of government.

On July 22nd, 1799, a convention to revise the Constitution met at Frankfort and was in session 27 days; the new Constitution was reported August 17th in which the Governor and Lieutenant Governor were chosen every four years by the voters directly.

The second Constitution of Kentucky went into effect in 1800 and remained unchanged for fifty years (until 1850). At this time Kentucky had forty-two counties. In 1850, June 3rd, the Constitution was again revised and remained so until in 1890, May 3rd, a convention was called to meet in Frankfort to revise the Constitution, which remains so until today with amendments added thereto.

The fourth Capitol was temporary, a building rented by the State until the completion of a new State House. By an act of January 31, 1814, five commissioners were appointed to contract for and superintend the construction of a new Capitol building which was to be fireproof. The commissioners were to solicit and receive voluntary contributions but they were forbidden to make any contract on the faith of the State. It was especially provided that in no respect whatever should the act be considered as a pledge of the continuance of the seat of government at Frankfort.

The fifth State House was built, at a cost of $40,000, in 1814-16, and, like its predecessor, it was a victim to flames in 1824.

The sixth State House, again temporary, was double, the Senate occupied a seminary and the Representatives a large meeting house, and again the demon fire pursued them.

On December 12, 1825—about 100 years ago—when the House was in session, the building was burned. The sittings of the House were transferred to the Methodist Church.

The seventh State House, the third built for the purpose, was first occupied by both Houses of the Legislature on December 7, 1829. It was constructed at a total cost of $85,000, the old building now stands and is the headquarters of the State Historical Society.

The building on the right of the old capitol, now occupied by the State Highway Commission, the State Railroad Commission, State Game and Fish Commission, and the State Geological Survey, was to have been the eighth State Capitol but it got no further than a common reference of years as "the east wing." The Legislature did not meet therein but continued its sessions in the seventh State House, now the Historical Building, until 1910 when sessions began in the new State Capitol, the eighth and probably the final State House of Kentucky.

The Legislature voted $100,000 appropriation on February 2, 1869, and the commissioners appointed to secure plans for a new capitol, which got no further than "the east wing." In a report to the Senate January 30, 1870, said "the building now in course of construction is intended to constitute the east wing of a more extended edifice."

The building was never finished. The east wing was left and is still in an unfinished condition, while the west wing was never commenced. The east wing is occupied by departments and is known as the old executive building.

The Senate chamber was to be located in the east wing and House in the west wing. In 1871, an additional appropriation of $55,000 was made, which only partly completed the work.

In 1904 the General Assembly, appropriated $1,000,000 for the erection of the present new capitol building, Kentucky's eighth State Capitol.

After jockeying over proposed sites, a permanent site was selected, located about one mile south of the old building on a prominent plot of about 40 acres overlooking the city. The selection was made at a special session in 1905, which was called by Governor J. C. W. Beckham.

Ground was broken on August 14, 1905. The 1906 session appropriated $300,000 additional for marble interior, granite columns and terra cotta roof to copper.

The 1908 Legislative session on Governor Willson's recommendation appropriated $450,000 for a power house, lighting plant, furnishings and fixtures, landscaping, etc.

The total cost of the building and site was $1,820,000, including $50,000 appropriated by the 1910 session. The building was first occupied in the fall of 1909 by public officers and the 1910 General Assembly was the first one to hold its session there.

The fourth floor of the new State Capitol has never been completed. There is plenty of room space, but not partitioned off.

On the third floor are the Legislative Halls.
